Top FDA Official, Amy Abernethy, to Keynote Veeva R&D and Quality Summit Online

Principal deputy commissioner will address industrywide shift to adopt advanced technologies and modernize drug development

Global pharmaceutical and biotech leaders come together to showcase progress speeding execution in clinical, quality, regulatory, and safety

PLEASANTON, CA — Oct. 5, 2020 — Veeva Systems (NYSE: VEEV) today announced that Amy Abernethy, MD, PhD, principal deputy commissioner of the FDA, is the featured keynote at the 2020 Veeva R&D and Quality Summit Online. In a fireside chat, Dr. Abernethy will discuss how the FDA is supporting the advancement of novel treatments and cures, as well as the urgent need to leverage innovative data and technology solutions for improved collaboration and faster drug development.

The annual event features more than 100 live and on-demand sessions where pharmaceutical and biotech leaders will share strategies and best practices to harmonize processes in clinical, quality, regulatory, and safety. Speakers will share how they're streamlining operations to speed innovation, including the advancement of patient-centric approaches, paperless trials, and end-to-end product development. Featured sessions include:

- Arcus Biosciences discussing the virtual implementation of their regulatory information management solution, including training and change management.
- AstraZeneca showcasing the positive impact of a unified clinical landscape on global study execution.
- BMS explaining their approach to streamline quality processes for personalized medicine.
- Celerion discussing their vision to automate and streamline information sharing during clinical trials for better collaboration and faster execution.
- Eli Lilly and Company sharing best practices on modernizing clinical data management for faster study cycle times.
- Legend Biotech highlighting how to harmonize quality across all GxP areas for improved visibility and compliance.
